FITNESS CRAZE

So Watching Storm Coverage Should Scare Us Skinny

A new study says watching horror films can burn nearly 200 calories — as much as a whole bar of chocolate. In research released Sunday, University of Westminster scientists said viewers who watched “The Shining” used up 184 calories. “Jaws” came in second, with viewers burning, on average, 161 calories, and “The Exorcist” burned 158 calories, the Telegraph reported. ### Not the Kind of Mother-Son Outing She Had in Mind

Police in Charlotte, N.C., arrested a mother and son in connection with a bank robbery Friday. Officers responding to a robbery call said they saw Carlos Lamonte Simpson, 21, and Pamela Simpson, 48, at a bus stop near the bank and spotted dye on their clothing from an exploded dye pack. The Charlotte Observer reported Sunday that police found the note used by the duo during the robbery. Both were arrested and charged. (EXPRESS)

Storm Restricts Campaigning

Obama and Romney reshuffle, cancel visits to East Coast

Celina, Ohio

Republican presidential candidate Mitt Romney and President Barack Obama frantically sought to close the deal with voters as this year's October surprise — an unprecedented storm menacing the East Coast — wreaked havoc on their best-laid plans, with few days left in an incredibly close race.

Wary of being seen as putting their political pursuits ahead of public safety, the two White House hopefuls reshuffled their campaign plans as the storm approached.

Both candidates were loath to forfeit face time with voters in battleground states such as Virginia that are likely to be afflicted by the storm.

"The storm will throw havoc into the race," said Sen. Mark Warner, D-Va.

An opportunity for Obama to demonstrate steady leadership in the face of crisis was offset by the risk that the federal government, as in past emergencies, could be faulted for an ineffective response, with the president left to take the fall.

stops Monday in Virginia and Tuesday in Colorado to monitor the storm but planned to go forward with other events Monday in Florida and Ohio, with former President Bill Clinton at his side. He planned to return to Ohio on Wednesday, followed by a Thursday swing through Springfield, Ohio; Boulder, Colo.; and Las Vegas.

Romney nixed three stops in up-for-grabs Virginia on Sunday, opting instead to campaign with running mate Paul Ryan in Ohio before heading Monday to Wisconsin.

"Let's today when we get home put in our prayers the people who

Early Voting

President Barack Obama and Mitt Romney on Sunday faced the prospect that bad weather could hinder early voting and get-out-the-vote efforts, key components for both campaigns. are in the East Coast in the wake of this big storm that's coming," Ryan said in Celina, Ohio.

Romney's campaign confirmed Sunday that he would not travel to New Hampshire on Tuesday as planned.

The campaign already canceled a Monday event in New Hampshire featuring Romney's wife, Ann. Advisers say further travel changes are likely as they monitor the storm's progress.

Vice President Joe Biden also canceled a Monday event in New Hampshire.

Romney campaign staffers planned to collect supplies for Virginia storm victims, and a Republican Party spokesman said Romney's campaign bus would be used for "relief efforts throughout the East Coast." JOSH LEDERMAN (AP)

New Quandary for Obamacare

Romney presidency would complicate life for health insurers

Washington

You'd think health insurance CEOs would be chilling the bubbly with Republican Mitt Romney's improved election prospects, but instead they're in a quandary.

Although the industry hates parts of President Barack Obama's health care law, major outfits such as UnitedHealth Group and BlueCross Blue Shield also stand to rake in billions of dollars from new customers who'll get health insurance under the law. The companies already have invested tens of millions to carry it out.

Were Romney elected next week, insurers would be in for months of uncertainty as his administration

What Could Be in Store

Mitt Romney's campaign isn't laying out specifics on how the candidate would carry out his promise to repeal the Affordable Care Act, other than to say the push would begin on his first day in office. Romney has hinted he wants to help people with medical conditions, but hasn't said which parts of the law he'd keep. He's more likely to reduce the scope and scale of the law, said Morningstar analyst Matthew Coffina. Possibilities include delaying parts of the coverage, particularly a Medicaid expansion that GOP governors don't like. (AP) gets used to Washington and tries to make good on his promise to repeal Obama's law. Simultaneously, federal and state bureaucrats and the health care industry would face a rush of legal deadlines for putting into place the major pieces of what

Republicans deride as "Obamacare."

Would they follow the law on the books or the one in the works? What would federal courts tell them to do? The answers probably would hinge on an always unwieldy Congress.

Things could get grim for the industry if Republicans succeed in repealing the Affordable Care Act's subsidies and mandates but leave standing its requirement that insurers cover people with health problems. If that's the outcome, the industry fears people literally could get health insurance on the way to the emergency room, and that would drive up premiums.

"There are a lot of dollars and a lot of staff time that's been put into place to make this thing operational," G. William Hoagland, until recently a Cigna vice president, said of the health care law.

Insurers "are not going to be out there saying, 'Repeal, repeal, repeal,'" Hoagland said. "They will probably try to find the particular provisions that cause them heartburn, but not throw the baby out with the bath water."

Truce Fails to Take Hold in Syria

4-day cease-fire plan fizzles as skirmishes continue in civil war

Beirut

Syria's air force fired missiles and dropped barrel bombs on rebel strongholds while opposition fighters attacked regime positions Sunday, flouting a U.N.-backed cease-fire that was supposed to quiet fighting over a long holiday weekend but never took hold.

The failure to push through a truce so limited in its ambitions — just four days — has been a sobering reflection of the international community's inability to ease 19 months of bloodshed in Syria. It also suggests that the stalemated civil war will drag on, threatening to draw in Syria's neighbors in this highly combustible region such as Turkey, Lebanon and Jordan.

"This conflict has now taken a dynamic of its own which should be worrying to everyone," said Salman Shaikh, director of the Brookings Doha Center think tank.

The U.N. tried to broker a halt to fighting over the four-day Eid al-Adha Muslim feast that began Friday, one of the holiest times of the Islamic calendar. But the truce was violated almost immediately after it was supposed to take effect, the same fate other cease-fires in Syria have met.

Activists said at least 110 people were killed Sunday, a toll similar to

Meanwhile ...

Iraqi authorities on Sunday forced an Iranian cargo plane heading to Syria to land for inspection in Baghdad to ensure it was not carrying weapons, the second such forced landing this month. The move appeared aimed at easing U.S. concerns that Iraq has become a route for shipments of Iranian military supplies that could help Syrian President Bashar Assad battle rebels. Iran is Syria's staunchest ally in the region. (AP) previous daily casualty tolls. They include 16 who died in an airstrike on the village of al-Barra in northern Syria's mountainous Jabal al-

Zawiya region.

The Observatory also reported a car bomb that exploded in a residential area in the Damascus neighborhood of Barzeh and wounded 15 people, but the target was not immediately clear.

Though Syria's death toll has topped 35,000, the bloodiest and most protracted crisis of the Arab Spring, the West has been wary of intervening. There is concern about sparking a wider regional conflagration.

The latest cease-fire was seen as a long shot from the outset. International peace envoy Lakhdar Brahimi failed to get firm commitments from all combatants, and no mechanism to monitor violations was put in place. (AP)

Officials: Abbas Will Push Bid For U.N. Status

Ramallah, West Bank

Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas is moving forward with his plan to seek upgraded observer status at the U.N. next month, despite American and Israeli threats of financial or diplomatic retaliation, officials said Sunday.

The decision sets the stage for a new showdown between Israel and the Palestinians at the world body, following last year's attempt by the Palestinians to seek status as a full member state. That initiative failed to pass the U.N. Security Council, but it caused months of diplomatic tensions with Israel.

This year, the Palestinians are seeking "nonmember state" status in the 193-member U.N. General Assembly, where passage is assured. (AP)

Buses Targeted in SE

Metro mulls ending night service in spots where vandals strike

Washington

The steep, narrow streets around Robinson Place, all too familiar with violent crime, have become treacherous territory for Metro-buses in Southeast Washington.

Police say that teenagers are regularly pelting buses with rocks, bricks and debris, causing injuries and damage and stirring anxiety among drivers and passengers.

Now, Metro wants to end night bus service in the trouble spots, all but giving in to the unidentified young people believed to be menacing the route.

Metro Transit Police say they have not been able to put a stop to the attacks, with no arrests in at least two years.

The chief spokeswoman for the D.C. police says the department does not assign officers or detectives to the bus cases because the attacks on Metrobuses are Metro's responsibility.

Caught in the middle are residents who live in the heart of the city's poorest ward and who depend on bus service.

If the proposed service-cuts to the routes — the W6 and W8 — are approved, some bus riders would be forced to walk up to half a mile to the nearest bus stop.

Metro's top bus official said he regrets having to take such a dramatic step but said he has to consider the welfare of the agency's employees and passengers.

"From a safety standpoint, it is worth taking the service away," said Jack Requa, Metro's bus chief.

A Metro W6 bus was hit with bricks near Naylor and Good Hope roads SE on Oct. 22.

Constant Problem

Rock-throwing incidents targeting buses have been a citywide problem for years, but they occur far more frequently in Southeast, Metro officials said. The problem is acute along the W6 and W8 routes, which are targeted several times a week. (TWP)

When the objects hit the moving buses, they crack windshields, break windows and, in the most serious cases, injure riders and bus operators.

Councilman Marion Barry, D-Ward 8, who represents the Robinson Place area, said the police haven't done enough.

"It's gotten worse because nobody's dealt with it," Barry said. "There's been this finger-pointing on the part of Metro police and D.C. police."

With many people in Ward 8 dependent on public transit, reductions in bus service should not be undertaken lightly, Barry said. Instead, the attacks on the buses — and similar vandalism — need to be more vigorously investigated than they have been up until now.

"They have not tried everything," Barry said. "Simple as that."

Police believe the people attacking the buses are between the ages of 12 and 19, said Jeff Delinski, deputy chief of the transit police. They hide in the dark, and, inevitably, they are gone by the time police officers show up, Delinski said. "We put our officers out there to attempt to catch these people and it is a waiting game," Delinski said.

"I don't know what it is about young boys that they love to throw rocks," Barry said.

Early Voters Overwhelm Polls

Some D.C., Maryland voters leave irked before casting ballots

Washington

Voters in the District and Maryland overwhelmed election officials at several polling places Saturday when the larger-than-expected crowds took advantage of the first day of early voting to cast ballots.

Officials said thousands showed up at voting sites, spurred on by President Barack Obama's plea to vote early and concerned about the threat posed by Hurricane Sandy.

D.C. voters line up outside the Chevy Chase Community Center to vote Saturday.

Several polling officials found themselves in a midday scramble to install more voting machines to handle the throngs.

Long lines and lengthy waits were reported at polling places in Montgomery and Prince George's counties in Maryland as well as in the District's eight wards. Some voters, frustrated by the delays, left before casting their ballots.

"We didn't expect all these people to come out," said Anthony Coachmen, a poll captain at the Columbia Heights Community Center in Ward 1. "It was a surprise." TIM CRAIG AND MIKE DEBONIS (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Storm Affects Voting

► In Virginia, one of the most competitive states in the race, election officials eased absentee voting requirements for those affected by the storm. "The state Board of Elections is already planning for extended hours in advance for absentee voting," said Gov. Bob McDonnell on Sunday. ► Gov. Martin O'Malley says early voting on Monday in Maryland has been canceled because of the storm. The governor made the announcement Sunday. O'Malley says the state wants to keep the full number of days for early voting, and he says he anticipates Monday's early voting day to be rescheduled for Friday. (AP)

Va. Poll: Kaine Maintains Clear Lead Over Allen

Richmond

Tim Kaine enters the final days of Virginia's U.S. Senate contest with a clear advantage over George Allen, a new Washington Post poll shows, keeping an edge despite a tightening presidential race and an avalanche of outside spending against the Democrat.

Kaine, a Democrat, leads fellow former governor Allen, a Republican, among likely Virginia voters, 51 to 44 percent, nearly unchanged from the 51 to 43 margin the Democrat enjoyed in the Washington Post's mid-September poll. While that survey showed the Senate race mirroring the presidential — Kaine and President Barack Obama held identical 8-point leads — Kaine is now in a stronger position than his party's standard-bearer.

Kaine

The race to succeed retiring Sen. Jim Webb, a Democrat, has been a consistently tight affair, closely watched by both sides.

Overall, Kaine is viewed favorably by 57 percent of likely voters and unfavorably by 33 percent. Allen's rating is 50 percent favorable, 37 percent unfavorable.

'This Is a ... Killer Storm'

D.C. area hunkers down, braces for a historic wallop from superstorm Sandy

Washington

As a mammoth storm system conspired to assault the most populous part of the United States, hundreds of thousands of people moved to higher ground on warnings that the East Coast faces a unique threat of high winds, drenching rainfall and unparalleled flood waters.

Before any significant rain had fallen in the nation's capital Sunday, the U.S. Office of Personnel Management announced that all federal offices in the Washington area would be closed Monday ahead of the brunt of Hurricane Sandy, with all nonemergency employees granted excused absences for the day. Cities north along the eastern seaboard exercised similar caution.

Weather officials spent Sunday warning that the hurricane, a jet stream barricade to the west, a strong Nor'easter and a full moon that drives tides to abnormal heights were not to be trifled with.

"This is a serious, killer storm," Maryland Gov. Martin O'Malley said. He urged residents to hunker down and prepare for what he and other officials expect to be extended days of power outages.

New York Mayor Michael Bloomberg ordered the evacuation of Coney Island and Lower Manhattan, and authorities shut down the city's subway system and schools. More than 60 miles inland, Philadelphia Mayor Michael Nutter urged people to flee low-lying neighborhoods. Thousands of flights in and out of eastern states were canceled, and utility crews were summoned from distant states after it was predicted 10 million people might lose electricity.

Up and down the East Coast, utility crews worked overtime to prepare for the storm. In the Washington area, utilities used robo-calls to warn people to prepare to survive without power for days or weeks.

Carla Eason hands out sandbags to D.C. residents Saturday amid preparations for the rains and flooding expected from Hurricane Sandy.

Hurricane Sandy FAQs

The Washington Post's Capital Weather Gang tackles some common questions about Hurricane Sandy. For more, go to Washingtonpost.com/blogs/capital-weather-gang.

When will we see the worst of the storm?

The strongest winds and heaviest rain should start Monday and into Tuesday. Wind and rain should ease Tuesday night.

How strong will the winds be?

As of Sunday afternoon, peak winds late Monday into Tuesday will likely be around 35-50 mph, with gusts to 55-65 mph (areas east of I-95 are likely to see the higher end).

How much rain will we get? What about flooding?

Total rainfall looks to be between 4 and 7 inches, but more is possible, especially to the east and northeast. Rivers and streams, as well as low-lying areas, are likely to flood.

Where will Sandy hit the hardest?

Areas along the coast, close to and just north of where Sandy makes landfall, will be hit hardest, especially in terms of storm surge. As of Sunday afternoon, that looks to be from central New Jersey to Rhode Island, including New York City.

How will Sandy compare with the D.C. derecho?

Sandy is a slow-moving, large-scale storm over an extended period, whereas the June derecho devastated the region in minutes. Prepare for a similar outcome — downed trees and potentially days without power — though utilities and officials have had days to prepare for this storm, unlike the derecho. (TWP)

Metro Closed

Metro canceled all Metrorail and Metrobus service on Monday because of Hurricane Sandy, Metro said in an online statement posted Sunday night. Riders should check Wmata.com for updates as to when service would be restored. (EXPRESS)

D.C. Mayor Vincent Gray and the governors of Maryland and Virginia, as well as officials in several localities in the region, already have declared states of emergency. Coastal resorts in Maryland and Delaware were evacuated.

One by one, local school systems — including those in the District and Fairfax and Montgomery counties — said they did not plan to open Monday, and the University of Maryland canceled classes. MARC and VRE service was canceled for Monday as well.

Residents boarded up windows and lined up to grab sandbags. Small areas of flooding had begun Sunday in the Hampton Roads area, and the beach at Virginia Beach was covered in water.

"This is going to be a long haul," said Virginia Gov. Bob McDonnell. "People are going to have to be patient."

Redskins All Wet in Pittsburgh

Dropped passes and defensive lapses give Washington no shot

The Pittsburgh Steelers turned Robert Griffin III into just another rookie quarterback.

The Steelers swarmed Washington's precocious star Sunday, keeping Griffin in check during a dominant 27-12 victory. Griffin completed just 16 of 34 passes for 177 yards and a score while managing 10 yards rushing.

Ben Roethlisberger had no such issues against Washington's depleted defense, throwing for 222 yards and three touchdowns as the Steelers (4-3) won consecutive games for the first time this season.

Jonathan Dwyer added 107 yards rushing in his second NFL start. Pittsburgh jumped on Washington (3-5) early, scoring on its first four possessions and never letting Griffin get loose.

Playing in 1934 throwback uniforms that made certain players resemble hulking bumblebees, Pittsburgh improved to 14-1 against rookie quarterbacks since 2004, doing to Griffin what they've done to the likes of Eli Manning and Joe Flacco.

The Heisman Trophy winner has taken the NFL by storm, his dazzling playmaking turning the moribund Redskins into one of the league's more compelling teams.

It all came to a crashing halt on a wet, raw day at Heinz Field. Wash-

Pittsburgh's Ziggy Hood and Cortez Allen tackle Robert Griffin III during the Steelers' 27-12 victory at Heinz Field on Sunday.

Report Card

BEST CALL: To start the third, RGIII found Niles Paul on a crossing route after a fake. It was the cleanest play of the day for 37 yards.

WORST CALL: The Redskins ran a trick play that put RGIII at receiver. When the ball was thrown, he committed a penalty then took a huge hit. Totally risky. Totally idiotic.

BEST ADJUSTMENT: After Antonio Brown hotdogged his way into the end zone on a punt return (it was called back) in the third quarter, the Redskins woke up.

F If you don't even bother to show up until after halftime, you will get embarrassed.

DeAngelo Hall confronts an official during the Redskins' loss to the Steelers on Sunday. The cornerback was ejected after losing his cool and may be suspended.

The Streak Lives

Redskins linebacker London Fletcher was in the starting line-up on defense, playing in his league-best 232nd consecutive game despite a hamstring injury and problems with his balance during the week. He missed practices Wednesday and Thursday but participated in Friday's session and was in his customary spot at inside linebacker. But even Fletcher's presence didn't help the Redskins' beleaguered pass defense. (TWP)

ington receivers struggled to catch the ball — dropping 10 passes — and Griffin found little room to showcase his brilliant speed. He ran just five times and was hemmed in by a defense that looked just fine without safety Troy Polamalu.

The Steelers held the NFL's top rushing offense to a season-low 86 yards and made sure Griffin got knocked around whenever he attempted to freelance.

Washington did its best to free up space for Griffin, at one point sending him out as a wide receiver in the second quarter. But Griffin was flagged for pass interference while trying to grab Josh Morgan's wobbly pass, another mistake by the Redskins on an afternoon full of them. Washington eventually lost its composure when cornerback DeAngelo Hall was ejected in the fourth quarter after getting in the face of an official. Hall may be suspended.

Griffin ended the day with a simple kneel down on the Redskins' last possession, eager to get out of the rain and away from the worst performance of his short career. (AP)

Sunday Recap

WEEK 8

Top Dogs

Rob Gronkowski, TE, Patriots

Gronkowski was Patriots QB Tom Brady's favorite target in New England's 45-7 rout over St. Louis in London, catching eight passes for 146 yards and two scores.

Matthew Stafford, QB, Lions

In a 28-24 win over the Seahawks, Stafford was 34 of 49 for 352 yards and threw for three touchdowns, two of which went to Titus Young. The quarterback also ran for a one-yard score, which gave Detroit a lead early in the fourth quarter for the first time this year.

Injuries

Brady Quinn, QB, Chiefs He was knocked out with a head injury in the first half of a game against the Raiders.

Colts Win in Dramatic Fashion

Colts running back Vick Ballard, bottom right, dives into the end zone for the winning touchdown during Indy's 19-13 overtime victory over the Titans on Sunday.

Hearsay

"I just never thought it was the time to do it. Mark's our quarterback."

The Numbers

The number of straight games the Patriots have surpassed 350 yards of total offense, an NFL record. They had 473 on Sunday against the Rams.

The number of consecutive possessions the Falcons scored on to start their 30-17 victory over the Eagles on Sunday.

153

The number of career TD passes thrown by QB Aaron Rodgers, who moved past Bart Starr into second place on the Packers' list.

Augustus Maiyo crosses the finish line as he wins the Marine Corps Marathon Sunday.

First-Time Marathon Runner Stands Alone

Running

Augustus Maiyo's legs were dragging by the time he reached the Pentagon on Sunday, the second to last mile of the Marine Corps Marathon. Maiyo's head was bobbing from fatigue, and it was wet after he dumped an entire bottle of water over himself a few minutes earlier. After checking his watch a few times on the last stretch, he knew he didn't have a chance at the course record. But he was still all alone.

Maiyo was dominant down the stretch in his first marathon, clocking in at 2:20:17 to win the 37th annual Marine Corps Marathon on Sunday, beating a field of nearly 30,000 runners who braved a chilling cold front.

Maiyo, who starred on the cross country and track teams at the University of Alabama between 2005 and 2008, was the leader for much of the race. A specialist in the U.S. Army, he was one of many runners representing the U.S. Army World Class Athlete Program based out of Colorado Springs, Colo.

Ethiopia's Hirut Guangul was the first woman to cross the finish line with a time of 2:42:06. The 20-year-old was running in just her sixth marathon, and after the race, she headed straight for a tent to have her lower left leg examined for tightness. But just as the wind couldn't hold Maiyo back, Guangul found a way to run through the pain for her first Marine Corps Marathon victory. (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Weekend Rewind

• The San Francisco Giants took a 3-0 lead over the Detroit Tigers in the World Series.

The Oklahoma City Thunder traded James Harden to the Houston Rockets.

• No. 5 Notre Dame stayed unbeaten, topping No. 8 Oklahoma 30-13.

• No. 10 Georgia dropped No. 2 Florida, 17-9, in an SEC football game.

• Maryland lost to Boston College 20-17 on a last-minute touchdown pass.

Political Theater

It seems you just can't watch TV without confronting politics. And that's not just the glut of campaign coverage. No, the high drama of this political season has been echoed by episodic TV. If candidates in real life are often criticized for playing roles and relying on scripts, these pretend politicians make no bones about it. FRAZIER MOORE (AP)

Showtime's "Homeland" had a national hero in U.S. Marine Sgt. Nicholas Brody when he returned home after eight years' imprisonment in Afghanistan. None of his admirers could have dreamed that Brody (played by Damian Lewis, left) had been turned against the U.S. by his al-Qaeda captors and was primed to carry out a terrorist attack on American soil. Now, in the series' second season, Brody has been elected U.S. congressman and is being groomed for the vice presidency.

CBS' "The Good Wife" is set in a Chicago law firm, but it has always had a political streak, thanks to Peter Florrick, estranged husband of attorney Alicia Florrick (series star Julianna Margulies). Played by Chris Noth, right, he was the state's attorney who, when the series began, was brought down by a sex and corruption scandal. He clawed his way back to his old job. Now he's running for governor of Illinois.

A parallel gubernatorial race is unfolding in Illinois on the just-concluded second season of the Starz drama "Boss," as, even more dramatically, longtime Chicago kingpin Tom Kane (Kelsey Grammer, above) struggles to maintain his grip as mayor.

On the new ABC series "Nashville," Teddy Conrad, left, is running for mayor of Music City. Up to now, he's been the in-the-shadows husband of country legend Rayna Jaymes (series star Connie Britton). But with the help of Rayna's father, ruthless tycoon Lamar Wyatt, Teddy (played by Eric Close, left) hopes to win a spotlight of his own.

ABC's "Scandal" is also set in Washington, where Olivia Pope and her staff are crisis management specialists. Her firm's elite clientele often puts Olivia in contact with the nation's biggest power brokers. And none is more powerful than President Fitzgerald Grant (Tony Goldwyn, seated at left), whom Olivia previously served as White House communications director — and with whom she's had a passionate affair, right under the nose of the first lady. Serious business!

Let's not forget Leslie Knope, a dedicated public servant in fictional Pawnee, Ind., on NBC's comedy "Parks and Recreation." Played by series star Amy Poehler, right, Leslie used to be deputy parks director, then at the end of last season, she won a seat on the Pawnee City Council. Her boyfriend moved to Washington to manage a congressional campaign, and maybe Leslie will someday find her way to Washington, too.

'SEAL' Film Under Fire

Critics say TV movie about bin Laden raid has a political agenda

Premiere

The team behind "SEAL Team Six: The Raid on Osama bin Laden" is saying the television movie was not recut to give a starring role to President Barack Obama two days before the presidential election.

National Geographic Channel CEO David Lyle says the film was indeed recut — but to show less footage of the president than an earlier version of the film.

"The end titles run longer than Obama's time on screen," Lyle says.

The movie has been accused by conservatives of having a political agenda in part because of its Nov. 4 premiere date and its backing by Obama supporter Harvey Weinstein. On Wednesday, the New York Times reported that a copy of the film provided to the paper showed that it had been recut to strengthen Obama's role.

National Geographic's "SEAL Team Six: The Raid on Osama bin Laden" debuts Nov. 4.

Lyle says the movie was "well timed for us because we believe the topic is interesting at all times" and called the notion that two minutes of screen time would affect the election laughable.

Produced by Weinstein and National Geographic, the 90-minute film depicts the mission that took down bin Laden, mixing interviews with flashbacks and archival footage. It's the first original film to come out of the National Geographic Channel, which has about 85 million viewers.

One of the film's co-stars, Kathleen Robertson, doesn't believe the criticism is fair.

"It's impossible to make a film about the killing of Osama bin Laden without the president being a part of that film," Robertson says.

7:30

Scare Tactics Tracy Morgan hosts this special 3½-hour marathon of new episodes, featuring more hidden-camera pranks with a sci-fi/horror twist. In the opener, singer/actress Brooke Hogan makes her "Scare Tactics" debut as a ravenous zombie.

CW

Gossip Girl At an event with Manhattan's elite, Chuck (Ed Westwick, right) hopes to find the person who can tell him the truth about his father. Serena and Steven share their romantic pasts, with unexpected results. And Nate faces a difficult business decision.

Castle Beckett's investigation of a gruesome ritualistic murder turns up a surprise: evidence that links Castle to the crime. As more evidence surfaces, she starts to wonder how well she really knows him.

CBS

Hawaii Five-0 It's Halloween, which ratchets up the weirdness for McGarrett, Danny (Scott Caan, left) and the Five-0 team as they investigate a particularly gruesome murder. The evidence indicates that this won't be the last killing, either, so they have to act fast.

Perception Shift

Inspired by his son's diagnosis, filmmaker James Redford set out to question society's perceptions with "The Big Picture: Rethinking Dyslexia" (7 p.m., HBO). Dyslexics Sir Richard Branson, above; Charles Schwab; and Gavin Newsom discuss their stories and suggest that, for them, the disorder was as much a gift as a setback. (UNIVERSAL UCLICK)

Stephanie Schmitt, Matthew Weiner

Stephanie, 23, is a communications associate. Matt, 35, is an audio engineer. They live in Silver Spring.

THE MAIN EVENT: They're getting hitched at the exclusive Mansion on O Street on June 29, 2013.

HOW THEY MET: When she moved to D.C., he was her housemate at her first sublet.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS: "He was a handsome older man who would never go for a young'un like me." "She was a sexy young thing who would never be interested in an old, haggard gent like myself."

FIRST DATE: A hike in Great Falls.

HOW HE PROPOSED: After a 15-mile bike ride on a 100-degree day in D.C.

MOST HATED CLOTHING ITEM:

"Some of her fanny packs are a bit dorky."

THEIR SONG: The classic song "Tonight You Belong to Me." "Matt is a musician, and during our first summer together, we recorded a cover."

MOST STUPID FIGHT: When she closed a door too quickly "and nearly clipped the cat's tail," Matt says.

WITH INFINITE FUNDS: Stephanie would rent out the White House for their reception.

Alexandra Grillo, Mike Rowshandel

Alex and Mike, both 27, are consultants. They live in Rosslyn.

THE MAIN EVENT: They're going to tie the knot Nov. 3 at a Catholic church on Capitol Hill, with their reception at a plush Georgetown hotel.

HOW THEY MET: Depending who you ask, middle school (Mike) or high school (Alex). After years in the friend zone, they began dating their senior year.

FIRST DATE: Dinner at Carrabba's.

FIRST KISS: At a Halloween party. He was dressed as Shrek, and she was dressed as french fries. "Super romantic," she says.

HOW HE PROPOSED: At sunrise at the Outer Banks with their puppy, a breakfast picnic and a scrapbook of their nine years together.

MOST STUPID FIGHT: "My belief that meat was the best source of protein versus beans caused quite the controversy," Mike says.

Jeff Geer, Renée Maurer

Jeff, 43, is a sales training manager. Renée, 40, is a museum curator. They will live in D.C.

THE MAIN EVENT: A Nov. 3 wedding at a restaurant and farm overlooking the Potomac.

HOW THEY MET: Match.com. After a few witty emails, they decided to meet for drinks at Central, one of Renée's favorite restaurants.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS: "I hoped the brunette reading the book would be my date."

FIRST DATE: The drinks quickly turned into a meal of lobster burgers and frites. "I like how we both agreed to splurge," Renée says.

HOW HE PROPOSED: A concert at the Kennedy Center, champagne and roses at her apartment, and dinner at Central to celebrate.

THEIR SONG: "Let's Stay Together" by Al Green. "The song is on the wedding playlist," Jeff says. Also, "Renée is letting me play the 'Hokie Pokie,' since I went to Virginia Tech."

MOST HATED CLOTHING ITEM: His Cowboys shirt. "As a good Maryland girl, I don't like the Cowboys."

MMM, CAKE: Their guests will be noshing on pumpkin, apple and pecan pies, but the bride and groom get a chocolate-peanut-butter cake.

B.I.O.

By Invitation Only If you'd like to see your wedding or commitment ceremony in B.I.O., send your favorite informal photograph (wacky is fine, but please don't send a formal engagement shot), plus your names and ceremony date to weddings@readexpress.com. Please contact us at least one month before your wedding. We'll get back to you with questions.

“This is @BillHamid28’s world. Y’all just living in it.”

—@MSHATZERDC reacts to the 21-year-old goalkeeper’s performance for D.C. United on Sunday in a 1-1 draw with the Chicago Fire. Hamid had multiple saves and was considered the man of the match.

“Contemplating another grocery run ... although I’d probably just buy ice cream & fishsticks.”

—@MALNURTUREDSNAY was well prepped for the hurricane scheduled to hit the East Coast.

“It strikes me as odd. G4 is pretty much the only game in town when it comes to geek-specific programming. ... Whether or not ‘Attack of the Show’ and ‘X-Play’ were your cup of tea, you have to admit outside of the internet, there’s nothing like it.”

—Jill Pantozzi at THEMARYSUE.COM laments the network’s cancellation of the two shows, announced Friday, which many believe is a move toward becoming a “more sophisticated male-centric” channel.

“If you’re planning to attend and photograph any parties this Halloween, try making a camera costume that both you and your camera can use!”

—Michael Zhang at PETAPIXEL.COM thinks photographer Eric Micotto’s Halloween costume is genius. His Instagram-inspired getup is powered by a Nikon D800 in the front and an iPad in the back that allows people to see the photos he just took.

“We’ll take a retread over thoroughly broken ground if it means getting to see Stallone fight Jason Momoa with an ax in a movie directed by the man who made ‘Last Man Standing.’ We’re completely cool with that.”

—Jacob Hall at SCREENCRUSH.COM is looking forward to “Bullet to the Head,” starring Sylvester Stallone, after the film’s second trailer was released Friday.

Improve depressive symptoms faster?

Effective medications for treating depression can take weeks or months to achieve their full effects.

NIH researchers seek depressed persons ages 18-65 (unipolar or bipolar) to enroll in a research study involving an experimental drug when compared to placebo. The study seeks to better understand and evaluate the mechanisms in the brain that are related to rapid antidepressant improvement.

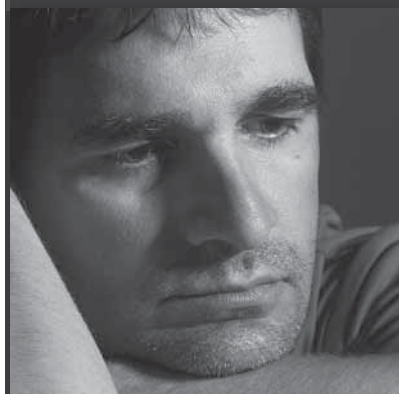

This is a 6-to 8-week outpatient and inpatient research study. Research is conducted at the NIH Clinical Center in Bethesda, Maryland. Understanding how the rapid reduction of symptoms works may help us design better antidepressants.

puzzles lookout

Horoscope

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You may not put your own stamp on an endeavor that has to fit into certain strict parameters, but you'll still be satisfied.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You mustn't overreact today to anything that is said or done in the heat of the moment. A certain freedom of expression is essential.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll be in a position to help someone else today, and you mustn't refuse. Indeed, how you react says a great deal about you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Certain dangers must be faced head-on. You'll want to be sure you can show those under your care what must be done.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Just because something is obvious doesn't mean it isn't worth paying attention to — and today, in fact, the obvious may be most important.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're likely to encounter something that challenges you in ways to which you are certainly not accustomed.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You'll want to be where you are most appreciated — and it may surprise you to learn just where this is, and why.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A personal mystery may not be unlocked, but you know where to go to find the key. It's only a matter of time.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The accidental can prove most influential to you. Focus on those things that touch you in unusual ways.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It may fall to you to tell others what to do, and you must be sure that you're not in over your head or too far outside of your comfort zone.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You will have ample opportunity to prove to those around you that you are, in a word, unusual. Don't get carried away, however!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) It's important that you know when enough is enough. Overindulgence can be detrimental, and you'll feel the effects for quite a while.

EXPERTISE

Book Missing Section on Throwing Parties in Vegas

One thing everyone in Britain can agree on: Pippa Middleton knows how to party. So she's releasing the book "Celebrate." The guide to home entertaining draws on her experiences working with her parents' business, Party Pieces, and a London events company. The book has tips on entertaining for different celebrations throughout the year as well as recipes, crafts and games. (AP)

Victims*With Friends Like These ...

Justin Timberlake says he's sorry for a "silly, unsavory video" that shows homeless people offering congratulatory wishes to the pop star and his bride, Jessica Biel. Timberlake posted a letter on his website Friday calling the video "distasteful" while admitting that it was made by his friends. He also says it wasn't shown at his wedding. (AP)

DREAMS COME TRUE

Fan's White Wedding Will Disappoint in Comparison

A Seattle man says that having Billy Idol play his 26th birthday party made for the greatest night of his life. Michael Henrichsen spent two years persuading the British rock icon to play his party, and it paid off Friday at a Seattle club when Idol brought Henrichsen on stage for a rendition of "Happy Birthday." Henrichsen's '80s cover band opened the show. (AP)

Billy Idol made fan Michael Henrichsen cry tears of — one would assume — joy.

HELP WANTED

At Least She's A Job-Creator

After a series of public relations nightmares, Lindsay Lohan's publicist has had enough. Steve Honig, who had been Lohan's mouthpiece since May 2011, quit Thursday. "It's private and I don't want to say anything," Honig told the New York Daily News. The paper says Lohan is having trouble finding a replacement. "She doesn't need a publicist," a source said. "She needs to get her [expletive] together." (EXPRESS)

KEEPING UP APPEARANCES

Prince Concerts: The Next Best Thing to Counseling

Robert Pattinson and Kristen Stewart attended a secret Prince concert together in Los Angeles last week and were "very affectionate," a source told the New York Post. The "Twilight" co-stars, whose relationship has been on the rocks, looked "perfectly content," the source said, as Pattinson wrapped his arms around Stewart throughout the secret show. (EXPRESS)
